Due to the recent surge in the cost of living in the metropolitan areas along with the rapid growth of the Chinese economy and various social welfare programs mapped out by Tier II and Tier III cities, people are now flowing into those cities from Tier I cities. Acknowledging this trend, transcosmos started to expand its business into Tier II and Tier III cities in order to secure employment and boost its marketing competitiveness. Located in the central and western part of China, Changsha, the capital of Hunan province and a designated historical and cultural city, claims to have one of the best cultural backgrounds and talent pools in China.

Opened as transcosmos’s 8th contact center in China, Changsha Center provides leading-edge contact center services including chat support for the global leading e-commerce / B2B online trading platforms, and telesales service for a major online financial enterprise.
