transcosmos and V, Inc. launch metaverse creator services for VRChat via Geek Jack, transcosmos's cross-border e-commerce site for entertainment items

MODE-SAPO!—creator support services for VRChat—streamlines non-creative tasks

transcosmos operates Geek Jack, a cross-border e-commerce site featuring entertainment items, most notably products from internationally popular virtual YouTubers, attracting users worldwide. In 2023, Geek Jack began selling avatars and outfits for VRChat, which have been well received globally. Now, transcosmos is excited to announce the joint launch of new services for metaverse creators using VRChat, in collaboration with V, Inc. (Headquarters: Tokyo, Japan; Representative Director & CEO: Kota Fujiwara).

transcosmos, together with V, Inc., has released MODE-SAPO!, a modeling support service designed to assist metaverse creators working on VRChat. The service targets creators producing avatars and accessories for the VRChat platform. The two companies aim to create an environment where creators can focus on core creative work by providing support for other processes, such as modification of creative works and technical assistance. The service offers two plans—subscription and optional—allowing creators to choose the model that best suits their needs.

■ Service menu <Subscription plan>

- DM (Direct Mail): Handles inquiries from customers and potential customers
- Translation: Translates product descriptions and captions in product images into major languages, such as English and Chinese
- License management: Manages licenses related to third-party use of creative works
- Administrative work: Supports administrative processes, such as listing products on marketplaces

■ Service menu <Optional plan>

- Debugging: Clipping test for created costumes and debugging services
- Clothing: Avatar clothing services Configures profiles for transformation parameters and custom clothing
- Image and video production: Creates promotional images and videos

Marketing professionals supervise the process to maximize product appeal
