transcosmos brings about indirect expenses reform by offering corporate back office services

Offers hyper care to implement and embed SAP Concur whilst providing end-to-end outsourcing services that cover all operations related to expense processing transcosmos inc. (Headquarters: Tokyo, Japan; President and COO: Masataka Okuda; transcosmos) offers end-to-end services that support all operations that are related to expense processing to companies that implement “SAP Concur”, a travel & expenses management solution offered by Concur Japan Inc. (Headquarters: Tokyo, Japan; CEO: Masamune Mimura; Concur).

As the labor shortage has become acute along with the decrease in working-age population, it is imperative for businesses to improve their productivity more than ever before. “SAP Concur” not only helps employees to go through required expense processes during their spare time via a mobile app but also makes the process smooth by connecting transport IC cards, corporate credit cards, and other various services with their expense data.

transcosmos has been offering services that help its clients to streamline operations in their accounting and IT departments. “SAP Concur” related services, on top of helping their businesses with complicated accounting operations, includes invoice processing, journal entry, and consumption tax handling. transcosmos supports users to implement and become familiar with “SAP Concur” offers operations helpdesk, invoice scanning and data entry, and optimization of receipt processing and invoice processing requiring a visual check.

By using “SAP Concur” together with transcosmos BPO services, businesses can reduce the workload of their employees who need to submit expense requests as well as that of approvers and the accounting department. Ultimately, the combined services translate into improved productivity.

One client that already has these services in place has seen an 80% drop in man-hours in their accounting and finance operations. transcosmos will continue to help clients further boost their productivity whilst improving operational accuracy.
