The Best Employer Awards program evaluates all registered companies from three perspectives. Firstly, each company is rated in terms of their size and strategies, management systems, corporate social responsibility initiatives, and training and education programs. Secondly, on the results of the online employee satisfaction survey, and the third rating is based on the results of public voting on the company’s popularity conducted via media. The event sponsor, HRD, is the leading human resources company in the East China region. Entrusted by the government of the Shuzo Industrial Park, HRD provides human resources development, management and research services, as well as other human resources services for businesses. This year, hundreds of companies entered for the award competition, and 55 companies received awards.

Having received a high score on its human resources development programs, transcosmos BPO China won the “Suzhou Best Employers for University Students Award.” transcosmos BPO China has been carrying out industry-academia collaboration programs such as offering joint-classes in partnership with three Universities in Suzhou. HRD highly evaluated transcosmos BPO China for its various employee training programs that range from practical skills, to language to communication that enable employees to engage in their work comfortably.

Building on the award, transcosmos BPO China will enhance its expertise, develop high-quality talent, and further strengthen its services.

With the aim of offering the best services for each individual client, both transcosmos and transcosmos BPO China are always striving for improving quality of services by applying external evaluation programs.
